MOOD: 😕 0.0

MUSIC: David Bowie - The Man Who Sold The World

So I opened a flickr account.

The screenshot shows a web form for setting up security questions. It includes fields for alternate email (chazvillette@gmail.com), a dropdown for the first name of a favorite uncle (selected to "What is the first name of your favorite uncle?"), and a dropdown for a spouse's name (selected to "- Select One -"). Below these are two sections: "Just a couple more details..." and "Type the code shown". The "Just a couple more details..." section lists various questions like "Where did you meet your spouse?", "What is your oldest cousin's name?", etc. The "Type the code shown" section contains a CAPTCHA code "p78uGAcy" and a "Try a new code" button.

...ECR from my SECURITY QUESTION OPTIONS?

CHRIST, PEOPLE!

...anybody want a five-collar coffee? I'm going for a goddamn walk.

(I'm laughing. I'm laughing. I'm still gonna go buy myself a cafe mocha.)

.....

...ah hell. At least you can laugh about it. And get me something with pumpkin spice in it please?

I want my wabbit, man.

She'd have hacked in and changed the damned things for me.
